

Bizarre Imagining

If only a lashing tongue
Of lightning sprung
A surprise--
Spat out a line of the purest silver
From the huge, sky-hung
Black cloud of worry,
The heart's long hoarded gloom
May yet be trapped like a bat
Infinitely in circles to wander
The world's enormous room,
Suddenly lit up
By a blinding flash.